JUROR SERVICE

An important responsibility of a citizen in a democratic society is serving as a member of a jury. A defendant in a criminal trial and parties in civil actions are entitled to having their cases heard by a jury of their peers. Your participation in the process is the hinge pin upon which the civil and criminal justice system revolve.

Serving on a jury panel is a valuable civic obligation. The only statutory exclusions for jury service are:

1. Unable to read, write speak and understand English.
2. Incapable of rendering jury service due to mental or physical infirmity (allowing for ADA standards)
3. Those convicted of crimes punishable by imprisonment for more than 1 year. (Any felony of Misdemeanor 1 or 2).

Prior law enforcement employment or experience does not automatically excuse you from service.

SELECTION PROCESS

If you are called for Jury duty, you will be asked to initially report for one (1) day. All juries will be selected that day and if you are not chosen for any jury, your service is complete.

If you are selected for a jury, you will be given written instructions and a phone number to call each evening to check on the scheduling of your trial. All trials will be heard during the two-week trial term. Most criminal and civil trials last only 1-3 days and the workday runs from 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

In most cases, if selected as a juror you will serve on only one trial. However depending on the number of prospective jurors appearing and the number of cases to be heard, there is the possibility of sitting on more than one trial. The Court will attempt to accommodate most reasonable requests to be excused however excusals are determined by the nature of the excuse, the amount of business and available jurors

Being sequestered is a possibility, but, a rare one-
Don't count on it!!

VOIR DIRE ???

The process of voir dire or “to speak the truth” is the questioning process in which attorneys ask a variety of questions to prospective jurors in order to select an objective and impartial jury. There are no right or wrong answers. Questions are asked to the body of prospective jurors and rarely (except in death penalty cases) are jurors examined, personally and in depth regarding their personal attitudes. The questions are generic and usually deal with:

- Your familiarity with the parties, counsel or knowledge of the crime or civil action.
- Whether you have had similar experiences as the parties involved in the case to be tried.

Jurors are paid $9/ day for each day served increasing to $25/day after the third day. Jurors receive 17¢/mile mileage reimbursement to and from your home.
